

Name:

Date:

Your task:

S.C.S.I.

You are the latest recruit to the S.C.S.I., the Spelling Crime Scene Investigators. Your first assignment is to find and correct all the mistakes in the attached document. You have been given the following information to help you.

- 1) There are 19 spelling mistakes.
- 2) 9 of these spelling mistakes are in words that are homophones
- 3) There are also 8 punctuation errors
- 4) There are 5 grammatical errors

You are keen to impress your new boss, Inspector S Pelling, and show him that you are a worthy member of the S.C.S.I.

Can you find and correct all the mistakes in the document?

Error report

Errors:	Tally of errors found:
Spelling
Punctuation
Grammar

Highlight the errors as you discover them. Write your corrections in the space between the lines.

Year 6. Visit to the transport museum

Miss Hills class set off from school just after assembly. Everyone was piled onto the bus in eager anticipation of the day ahead. The teacher's sat at the front and tried to keep the children quiet but it was an uphill struggle. The children were far too excited.

After traveling for about half an hour, the coach turned off the main road into a winding country lane. It was at this point that the coach seemed to slow down and the engine started to make a funny whining noise. The coach driver went pale. The coach was coming to a stop.

'Don't worry,' he said. 'I will have a look at the engine and we will soon be on our way again.'

But half an hour past and the bus was still stationary. The children's excitement had turned to frustration and boredom. Some of them had started to eat their packed lunches and the teachers' faces were etched with worry lines.

'Don't worry,' said Bob, the coach driver. 'I will ring the depot and get them to send another coach. We will soon be on our way again.'

Half an hour turned into one hour. One hour turned into two. The teachers had been through their entire repertoire of travel games and songs and the children were becoming irritable. The heat in the coach was becoming hard to bear.

'Don't worry,' said Bob. 'I will turn up the air conditioning and we will soon cool down.'

Just as soon as he had said this, the relief coach turned up and it really was a relief. They all wearily changed coaches and started on their way back to school.

It was a trip that they will remember for a long time, but sadly for all the wrong reasons!

Corrected version: Year 6. Visit to the transport museum

Miss Hill's class set off from school just after assembly. Everyone was piled onto the bus in eager anticipation of the day ahead. The teachers sat at the front and tried to keep the children quiet but it was an uphill struggle. The children were far too excited.

After travelling for about half an hour, the coach turned off the main road into a winding country lane. It was at this point that the coach seemed to slow down and the engine started to make a funny whining noise. The coach driver went pale. The coach was coming to a stop.

'Don't worry,' he said. 'I will have a look at the engine and we will soon be on our way again.'

But half an hour passed and the bus was still stationary. The children's excitement had turned to frustration and boredom. Some of them had started to eat their packed lunches and the teachers' faces were etched with worry lines.

'Don't worry', said Bob, the coach driver. 'I will ring the depot and get them to send another coach. We will soon be on our way again.'

Half an hour turned into one hour. One hour turned into two. The teachers had been through their entire repertoire of travel games and songs and the children were becoming irritable. The heat in the coach was becoming hard to bear.

'Don't worry' said Bob 'I will turn up the air conditioning and we will soon cool down.'

Just as soon as he had said this, the relief coach turned up and it really was a relief. They all wearily changed coaches and started on their way back to school.

It was a trip that they will remember for a long time, but sadly for all the wrong reasons!